

Cambridge Public Policy

SEMINAR SERIES

Tuesdays in October and November, 1–2pm

The Cambridge Public Policy (CPP) Seminar Series brings together a diverse range of individuals from the humanities, social sciences and natural sciences, to discuss the public policy implications of their work and research.

Each talk will last 25–30 minutes, followed by open discussion, and will take place on Tuesday between 1–2pm in Clare College, Cambridge.

16 Oct Living with earthquakes in the developing world

James Jackson

Head of the Department of Earth Sciences, University of Cambridge

Latima Room, Clare College

6 Nov Lessons from public dialogues commissioned by the RCUK

Rob Doubleday

Executive Director, Centre for Science and Policy (CSaP)

Patrick Middleton

Head of Engagement, Biotechnology and Biological Sciences Research Council (BBSRC)

Latima Room, Clare College

20 Nov How religion has changed in Britain since the 1980s, and what it means for policy

Linda Woodhead

Professor of Sociology of Religion, Department of Politics, Philosophy and Religion, Lancaster University

Latima Room, Clare College

For more information or to suggest future speakers, please email Miranda Gomperts cambridgepublicpolicy@csap.cam.ac.uk

These events are free and open to all. Please sign up for these events at <http://bit.ly/NNFxGb>